

AS HER BOYS ARE EDGED OUT IN DECIDER

BEATEN: Paddy Doherty and Mary Byrne

SUPPORT: Birthday girl, Niamh (6) with mum Vivienne (right) and Linda

FANS: Megan, Alyssa and Cathy

DELIGHTED: Our girl Ger congratulates Calum

Calum to thrilling win in Celebrity Bainisteoir

airwaves to vent their disapproval. Luckily, the team was made up of red-blooded lads! Meanwhile, cunning Calum enlisted the help of a troupe of sexy cheerleaders to keep his lads' spirits up, and cooked meals for his new mates. And he showed he was a dab hand at housework when he beat semi-finalist Mary Byrne in a novelty challenge – to see who was best at cleaning a hotel room! And clearly their unconventional tactics worked, as both teams played a blinder on Friday night. It was neck and neck all the way – until Calum's lads edged ahead. Less than three minutes before the final whistle, Foxford's Brian Heneghan was fouled by the Cashel keeper. The resulting free-kick gave Foxford the chance of glory, with Sean Kelly converting. Drama The exciting match impressed even hardened gaelic football experts – including mentors Ciaran Whelan and Liam Kearns, retired commentator Michael O'Muircheartaigh and Memory Man Jimmy Magee. But the Sunday World only had eyes for the hunky footballers. And I was feeling Foxy-ford when some of the winning team suggested swapping tops with me. But I was sure their Bainisteoir was just being a perfect gent when he offered me his coat on the freezing pitch. I was GAA-gging to know if Roz fancied any of the gorgeous blokes on her team, but the beauty was tight-lipped. "I'm their manager so it wouldn't be very professional if I fancied them," she insisted. But she got a big hug from Calum – who has clearly forgotten all about his ex Georgia Salpa. "I wish her well – but that's all I'll say about Georgia," he said, as he went back to his hotel to party before heading to Bray for the The Miss Eclectic Garden 2012 Final. While Calum didn't bring any one over from England –

"because RTE are a bit tight with the money" – Roz brought a few model mates who consoled her when she shed a few tears. But after such a close finish, and such an entertaining match, everyone was a winner. Afterwards Calum made a dash to the The Miss Eclectic Garden 2012 Final at The Porterhouse in Bray, Co Wicklow on Friday night. He was on the judging panel which included models Tiffany Stanley and Sara Kavanagh. The winner on the night was stunning local girl Sinead Duffy who will now take part in the Miss Universe Ireland Final on Friday.

SAD DAY: Rozanna Purcell was in tears after tough defeat