

GIVE OUR GIRL GRAND TOUR OF THEIR POSH PALACE

NEWS IN BRIEF

BOOST FOR TREATMENT

A NEW once-off prostate cancer treatment led by University Hospital Galway is to be expanded nationwide. The National Prostate Brachytherapy Service was officially launched this week at the Newcastle facility. Some 440 men have availed of the treatment in the past five years at UHG and it's now being rolled out to St Luke's Hospital in Dublin and Cork University Hospital.

HAM PALACE

as rescuers save their bacon with move to stately home

HOT TO TROT: Pigs enjoy their new life at the manor with owners Sabina and Uli obesity and heart-disease just like humans.

"We were told to feed them just twice a day - otherwise they'd spend the whole day pigging out. And they're banned from eating bread or citrus fruits - they are very bad for them," Sabina added.

However, the pigs look certain to be spoiled by local children and the couple's two grown-up daughters, Deirdre and Niamh, when they come home from college in England.

After their supper, Bubble and Squeak were brought out to the farmyard, where they sleep in a proper pigsty.

Pot-bellied pigs have become popular as pets thanks to George Clooney, who kept one in his

KIND: Uli & Sabina with pigs house on Italy's Lake Como.

The actor was said to be heartbroken when Max the pig died, aged 19, in 2006 - and even hired a psychic to get him a hotline to Hog Heaven.

The pot-bellied pigs are highly intelligent and affectionate animals that can be trained like dogs and can also be kept indoors.

Adult pot-bellied pigs can grow up to 26 inches high and weigh between 100-250 pounds.

Wells House and Gardens are open to the public all year round. Entry is €8 per car. See www.wellshouse.ie for details.

WE'VE MISSED HER BUT SHE'S BACK!

DON'T MISS YOUR

FREE
Georgia Salpa

GLOSSY POSTER TOMORROW WITH A DIFFERENT POSTER ON TUESDAY

FREE TOMORROW ONLY IN YOUR IRISH DAILY STAR!

